

There are no translations available.

Principal Advantages of Electronic Billing

With the advent of electronic invoicing and its legal framing, many have been the companies who have incorporated new technologies that support the implementation of this new procedure. This reality that is derived primarily from the fact that the Return on Investment (ROI) associated with its implementation be achieved in the short term.

This is a new reality for many companies that used to expend to much time, resources and money in the treatment of the invoicing process. The higher volume of paper, impressions, envelopes, sending taxes, limitations in the method of correspondence expedition (hourly, availability, distance), the probability of the invoices that do not arrive at time at the destination (or same to be corrupt) represents an enormous cost for organizations. The electronic invoicing solution focus essentially on information systems process improvement. Reorganizing all the process of send/receive and confirmation of invoices is already an objective defined for many companies that intend to reduce costs and increase its profits.

MarketWare as an expert on this thematic, presents to the market technological solutions that allows the introduction of a user-friendly methodology, simple and intuitive that guarantees the security levels that a project of this importance requires. To strengthen its performance in this area, MarketWare signed on June 6th 2005 a partnership agreement with the Adobe Systems in Development Area for electronic invoicing solutions for the European market.

In this context, companies from different business sectors, prefer solutions based on electronic documents and supported by PDF technology. MarketWare while supplier leader of Digital Signatures, offers a group of solutions that helps to create electronic documents, including Electronic Invoicing, signed digitally and with legal recognition.

